Dear Clarence:

As the chief law enforcement officer in America, I would appreciate your views on a proposal that has recently been made that medicaid recipients be eligible for free abortions (at government expense) where the pregnancy resulted from rape or incest.

I believe that if such a proposal became a reality that we would have created a situation requiring the reporting of a crime as a condition for obtaining a free abortion. If the reporting of a crime becomes financially profitable, can we not expect innumerable false reports and would not each such report have to be investigated, requiring considerable manhours of already overburdened police departments and district attorneys' offices?

Furthermore, when it is found that a complaint is false, then wouldn't even further police and D. A. time be spent in charging the individual with making a false report?

Are my concerns here valid, based on your own extensive knowledge and experience in the law enforcement area?

I look forward to receiving your views respecting such a situation at your earliest possible convenience.

Very truly yours,

Henry J. Hyde

Dear Congressman Hyde:

In response to your letter of July 13, 1977, I am sure that you are aware the FBI has limited investigative jurisdiction concerning the crime of rape. Should medicaid recipients be eligible for abortions at Government expense where the pregnancy resulted from a rape, I believe this would encourage the reporting of that crime, however, some of these reports might be false. It would, of course, be highly speculative to estimate the percentage or amount of false reports that might be made.

I regret I cannot be of further assistance in this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Clarence M. Kelley

Dear Congressman Hyde:

I want to take this opportunity to let you know how much I enjoyed the recent breakfast meeting at the Capitol Hill Club. The breakfast afforded me an occasion to listen to and exchange views on subjects of mutual interest including the FBI's efforts against drug trafficking, organized crime and other elements of the criminal community. I particularly appreciated the expressions of legislative and fiscal support of Congress.

This breakfast meeting was very helpful to me in encouraging communication between the FBI and your office. In this regard, I trust you recall my invitation to you and your colleagues to visit FBI Headquarters. The visit would include a special tour and demonstration of the FBI's artificial intelligence information systems. Please give me a call if it is possible for this to be done.

Thanks again for your hospitality. I have enclosed a photograph as a memento from the breakfast.

Dear Congressman Hyde:

I appreciate your comments aired last night on "Capitol Commentary." As you recognize, there is often a delicate balance between the FBI's obligation to investigate support in this country for international terrorism and the rights of our citizens to dissent from the views and actions of our political leaders. I took into careful consideration these two often competing concerns when making the policy and procedural changes that I instituted as the result of our CISPES inquiry. I am satisfied that we have struck the proper balance and I am grateful that you have reached the same conclusion.

Sincerely,

William S. Sessions

division of the question, I would urge every Member on both sides of the issue to vote to recede, because if we do not vote to recede, we are never going to be able to concur with an amendment. Admittedly, those who are opposed to the position the conferees have taken here, I assume, would like to recede and concur. If that move is made, the preferential motion is one to recede and concur with an amendment which, of course, would be the prerogative of our chairman. Then I would ask that if we get through to that point, that the Members certainly support the chairman and their conferees because, as the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CONTE) has said, 16, 17, 18—I do not know how many—amendments and efforts were made during a 2-week period of time during which we attempted to iron this thing out to the satisfaction and agreement of all parties. It is practically impossible. But in the final resolution I might say that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. BAYH) supported this proposition when it was put to a final vote of the Senate conferees, so I think that should give indication enough to some of those who are of like mind to support what the conferees have done.

Mr. SEIBERLING. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MICHEL. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. SEIBERLING. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Would it be correct to summarize the effect of the motion by observing that if we wish to have Dr. Jekyll, we must also take Mr. Hyde?

Mr. MICHEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. FRENZEL. Mr. Speaker, we have already adopted the conference report on this bill. I voted negatively because the bill contained excessive spending—at least $4 billion over the President's budget.

Today we are concerned only with the compromise language of the Hyde amendment. The House conferees were successful, and the basic thrust of the Hyde amendment was preserved. Per my remarks when this bill was last before us, I do not support that amendment, and shall vote "no" today.

Mr. LEVITAS. Mr. Speaker, I originally opposed the Hyde amendment for several reasons, but one of the chief reasons was that it deprived a woman who was poor from receiving even a therapeutic abortion, as opposed to an elective abortion. The new amendment presented today eliminates that problem and therefore I can support it.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Speaker, I support the Senate-House conference position on abortion. In the language of the conference report, which I take it will govern the amendment in disagreement:

It is the intent of the Conference to limit the financing of abortions under the Medicaid program to instances where the performance of an abortion is deemed by a physician to be of medical necessity and to prohibit payment for abortions as a method of family planning, or for emotional or social convenience. It is not our intent to preclude payment for abortions when the life of the woman is clearly endangered, as in the case of multiple sclerosis or renal disease, if the pregnancy were carried to term. Nor is it the intent of the Conferees to prohibit medical procedures necessary for the termination of an ectopic pregnancy or for the treatment of rape or incest victims: nor is it intended to prohibit the use of drugs or devices to prevent implantation of the fertilized ovum.

The conference report replaces language previously adopted by the House, but rejected by the Senate—the so-called Hyde amendment, containing an absolute prohibition against the use of medical funds to pay for abortions. This absolute prohibition is identical with that contained in the so-called human life amendment to the Constitution, guaranteeing "the right of life to the unborn from the moment of fertilization."

I know that many sincere persons, both lay and clerical, support the human life constitutional amendment and its legislative counterpart. After carefully studying the 1973 Supreme Court abortion decision, and after extensive dialog and communication, I concluded that I cannot be in support, and have so informed those interested in the human life amendment and its legislative counterpart. For example, to deny to a State the power to legalize an abortion so as to arrest the fertilization that has taken place as a result of rape or incest, or where it is deemed by a physician to be a medical necessity, seems to me to disregard other important human rights—the right of a mother to her health, and the right of a family whose maternal leader has been the subject of rape to avoid the consequences of a violent fertilization.

These are serious questions. I have given them serious thought.

Mr. FLOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FLOOD).

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WIRTH. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry in relation to the comments just made.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WIRTH. My question, Mr. Speaker, is are we going to be able to vote, first of all, upon the amendment as agreed to by the conferees before we vote on the whole of the bill?

The SPEAKER. That is not in order after the question is put.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. BAUMAN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 256, nays 114, not voting 60, as follows:
